

Situational Leadership

online course

Want to be better at reading the situation and adapting your leadership style to the circumstances at hand? You are not alone. Situational Leadership is the world's most widely used leadership training program, providing you with skills you will wish you would always have had.

We are all different, presenting opportunities and challenges for you as a leader. Why is your employee not performing as expected right now? Is it because they lack the skills or harbour an unwillingness to do so? As a leader, maybe you need to change your leadership style to get your employee back on track, and if so, how do you adapt to the situation? Situational Leadership focuses on these issues. The course is based on Paul Hersey's leadership model. The basic approach is to lead by developing employee skills and assessing the person in the given situation rather than the person. To do that as a leader, you need to recognise your employee's needs, abilities, and willingness to do the job in the situation at hand and adapt your leadership style to instruct and support the individual.

Target group

Managers, project managers, and other frontline employees who want to create success with a situational approach to leadership. By learning different leadership styles to meet your employees' needs in every situation, you become more agile as a leader and empower people to succeed, resulting in happier, more effective employees.

You will be better at

- reading and understanding situations, identifying needs
- adapting your actions to the situation
- communicating more effectively
- become more agile and proactive
